Educational EQUITY in ACTION

Improving social emotional learning through schools & communities

date!

JUNE 20-21, 2017

Save the date for the second University of Minnesota convening of Minnesota's education leaders, researchers, policy makers, and non-profit community organizations committed to improving educational equity in our state.

Our goal: connect schools and communities: At last year's convening, many of you were moved by Jeff Duncan-Andrade's keynote on the impact of chronic trauma and expressed interest in finding ways to better support social emotional learning (SEL). We heard you, and this year's event will focus on aligning the SEL work schools do with work happening through youth and community organizations.

At the event: You'll meet University of Minnesota faculty members and colleagues from schools and communities across the state dedicated to improving educational equity through a more robust focus on social emotional learning and by addressing trauma.

Following the event: You'll leave with ideas for how to promote social emotional learning in your organization and a support system of others across the state focused on the same goal.

REGISTRATION | Registration will open in February. For more information, visit gap.umn.edu or email edequity@umn.edu.
